Notes
Sit back and down, keep your upper back tight to the bar
Drop the weight by ~25% from your top set. 2 second pause. Sit back and down, keep your upper back tight to the bar
Maintain a neutral lower back, set your hips back, don't allow your spine to round
Take medium strides, minimize the amount you push off your rear leg
Focus on squeezing your hamstrings to move the weight
Press all the way up to your toes, stretch your calves at the bottom, don't bounce
Hold a plate or DB to your chest and crunch hard!
Set up a comfortable arch, quick pause on the chest and explode up on each rep
Shoulder blades still retracted and depressed. Slight arch in upper back. Zero leg drive.
Start with your elbows in front of you and palms facing in. Rotate the dumbbells so that your palms face forward as you press.
Brace with your non-working arm, squeeze your pecs by pressing the cable across your body

Hold a pec stretch for 30 seconds. The stretch should be held at about a 7/10 intensity.
Think about swinging the cable out and up as if "drawing a sword" from your side
Do the second half of the ROM for pressdowns ("the squeeze") and the first half of the ROM for overhead extensions ("the stretch")
Extend your triceps with your arm more out to the side than a regular pressdown. Feel the stretch as the cable moves across your torso
Do 4 feeder sets of 10 reps by gradually building the weight up from set to set. Set 1 is pretty light (RPE 4-5). Set 2 is a little heavier (RPE 6-7). Set 3 is a little heavier again (RPE 7-8). Set 4 is your hard set: try to hit failure at 10 reps on this last set.
After hitting failure at ~10 reps, do a dropset. Strip the weight back ~30-50% and do another 5 reps with nice and controlled technique
Use 3 different grips for the 3 working sets (ideally going from wider to closer)
Do DB lat pullovers, but cut out the top half of the ROM (stay entirely in the stretched aspect of the lift)
Hold a lat stretch for 30 seconds. The stretch should be held at about a 7/10 intensity.
1st set: low-to-high 2nd set: mid-range 3rd set: high-to-low
Focus on contracting your biceps, minimize torso momentum
Do preacher curls, but cut out the top half of the ROM (stay entirely in the stretched aspect of the lift)

Brace your lats, chest tall, pull the slack out of the bar before lifting
Think about doing a high-hip conventional deadlift with a slight bend in the knees
Use ~45° incline and a grip width just outside shoulder width
Underhand grip, pull your chest to the bar, add weight if needed to hit RPE
Medium width feet placement on the platform, don't allow your lower back to round
Kroc rows are basically just a dumbbell row with mild cheating and a slightly more upright posture. Don't be afraid to go heavy and use straps if your grip is limiting
Place your hands close together on the ground so that they form a diamond shape and do as many pushups as possible with a smooth tempo
